Mechanochemical Transition of the Solid-State Structure of Bilayer-Stacked Chloroplast Photosystem 2D1. Photosystem 2D1 (D1) is a single-band chlorophyll dimer in Photosystem 2, where excitation occurs on a pair of pigments. We found that the solid-state structure of D1 associated with chlorophyll dimers has a novel lattice mode (G1 layer), and we verified the feasibility of its hypothesis by DFT and MD calculations. Mechanochemical transition from the current structure to the G1 layer was simulated with the current prototype of a mineralization device, and the transition was successfully achieved.

Q: How to make my app offline-aware? I am working on an app, which is not internet-aware. It will be used only in offline mode. The app should get data from my server (using PHP), and at the same time it should get updated data from server. So in other words, user should get refreshed data. The questions are: How should I change my app's code to make it internet-aware? Or is there any other solution for the problem? Thanks.

A: To make your app offline-aware, you have to make sure you have different.js files for the time when the user is connected and the time when they are not. You can do this, for example, by updating your.html file and your.js files with something like this: `My App $.ajaxSetup({ cache: true }); ...` To make it more easy to update, I suggest you to use webpack to transpile your script to es6, this will be a pain in the ass to setup if you do it manually.
