Biopsies from ileum were taken during cesarean section from five women with uncomplicated pregnancies and from five women after delivery of infants with gastroschisis. The specimens were fixed in zinc-formalin fixative and paraffin sections were prepared for histologic and immunohistochemical examination. A high grade of fibrosis and accumulation of collagen fiber were found in the subserosal layer of the ileum of mothers and fetuses with gastroschisis, whereas the amounts of collagen fiber were rather low 6d1f23a050
